For over two decades, Dr. Robin Rutherford has placed patients at the forefront of his cosmetic, implant and sedation practice. They are usually at the point of their lives when it's time to address dental problems they've tolerated for years.

"We'll look at the mirror together, then produce a computer image of the smile you envision," he says. "We customize your treatment, telling the lab exactly what we want and creating what you think is beautiful. Our patients tell us and we listen."

Under Dr. Rutherford's care, patients no longer need fear the pain and anxiety associated with yesterday's dental care. Entire treatment plans are usually completed in two or three convenient visits.

"With sedation dentistry, we accomplish several hours' worth of work in one visit, while the patient remains conscious but deeply relaxed. Most have little memory of the whole visit. They awake feeling good and well-rested, like a kid on a car trip who nods off, then wakes up at the destination."

In the past three years alone, Dr. Rutherford has logged over 400 hours of continuing education, studying the latest innovations with the nation's best practitioners. Patients revere his skills and compassion. As he puts it, "Change your smile, change your life."
